WHAT IS BACA? –

The BOSTON ASSOCIATION OF CABARET ARTISTS Founded in 1995, BACA has grown from a fledgling support group for performers into the only arts group in New England focused exclusively on the promotion and advocacy of cabaret. With over 150 members, BACA is a vital and active organization composed of established cabaret professionals, aspiring performers, open mike enthusiasts, accompanists, songwriters, music educators, students, dedicated audience members and venue owners. BACA operates entirely under the direction of a nine member volunteer Board of Directors who are elected by the membership. The Board works to maintain BACA as a forum for sharing information about performances, workshops, collaborators and resources helpful for creating new shows. BACA also concentrates on developing public awareness of cabaret, building new audiences, venues, and performance opportunities for cabaret artists.

BACA "March IS Cabaret Month (MICM) 2009 Festival" Cabaret Showcase Program for Sunday, March 22, 2009

The Roots of Cabaret were in Europe.

In France, Cabaret began in 1881 in Le Chat Noir (The Black Cat), a club in the Montmartre district of Paris. Cabaret clubs provided an opportunity for performers, poets, artists and composers to try out new material, share political, provocative and humorous ideas and original compositions, often, with an audience of peers. It became immensely popular and a refuge for patrons to find entertainment and drink. Talouse-Lautrec captured many cabaret artists and audiences in his paintings. Le Chat Noir attracted several well-known composers, such as Eric Satie, who walked across town to play piano in cabarets. Cabarets were distinctive in their intimacy and informality where audiences sat at small tables dining and often interacted with the performers and other audience members.

In Germany, Munich was the artistic centre of the country. Performers, writers, artists and musicians gathered together at the many cafes often sharing political protest against the German state. Because of the rise in Modernism and great music hall attendance, there was a natural interest in the new brand of entertainment; the cabaret. Die Elf Scharfrichter, (Eleven Executioners), was Munich's first cabaret. They managed to avoid the issue of censorship by making the club private. The cabaret's most striking and influential figure was writer, performer of Munich's avant garde, Frank Wedekind. His political, satirical music influenced the Berlin Cabaret style and most particularly Bertolt Brecht.

What is Cabaret?

After World War I, cabaret enjoyed even greater popularity all across Europe, but particularly in Germany, where the Weimar government essentially ended all forms of censorship. Cabaret became a forum for experimentation by the cultural avant garde. In Berlin, Shadow plays were performed and cabaret songs were composed by Schönberg. Expressionist poets also performed. We are most well acquainted with the ambiance of a 1932 Berlin cabaret through Bob Fosse's stage and film production of Cabaret Within a few years of Hitler's rise to power in 1933, however, the Nazi's effectively censored cabaret subculture in Germany.

In the United States cabaret reflected the same kind of diversity that marks the society, in general. It originated without the political charge, social commentary and intellectual atmosphere of the European cabaret. During the 1910's, in New York, several large cafes created a glamorous atmosphere that featured singers and a dance floor. These establishments became known as "cabarets." Delmonico's, Reisenweber's, Palaise Royale and Shanley's were the most well known night spots at the time. In 1913, however, a city ordinance forced Manhattan's cabarets to close by 2:00 AM. To combat this constraint, the first "night clubs" emerged. They stayed open throughout the night and served members-only audiences. These cabaret night spots drew adult audiences who were seeking an evening of pleasure where women as well as men could easily socialize with racial, ethnic and social class diversity. This social mélange was a scandal to many of the preachers of the day.

BACA “March IS Cabaret Month (MICM) 2009 Festival” Cabaret Showcase Program for Saturday, March 21, 2009

In 1920, prohibition caused a setback for cabarets, since alcohol was such a central part of the evening’s entertainment. Cabaret owners were not to be deterred - they took up residence in gangster owned “speakeasies” that opened in basements, backrooms and banned bars to defy the Volstead Act. Again, owners got around the law by making these venues ‘members only clubs’ so they could sell “hooch”. It only took a knock at the door and the words, “Joe sent me” to become a member at any of the clubs. Bootlegged whiskey, music and dance made the establishment look more legitimate. Women singing sad torch songs, sometimes sitting on top of a piano, motivated liquor sales. Some renowned singers performed in these clubs. Helen Morgan, Ziegfeld’s star of “Showboat”, and film star Ruby Keeler were amongst the women who made a mark in these clubs.

Prohibition ended in the 1933, during the height of the Depression. American’s needed an outlet for combating the bleak economic times, and large nightclubs became popular. Places like The Copacabana, The Diamond Horseshoe or The Cotillion Room featured headliners, such as Jimmy Durante or Sophie Tucker with with opening acts and chorus girls. Candlelight, formally dressed waiters, and an elegant decor exuded glamour.

Around the time of World War II, smaller clubs came into vogue. Because New York law required food to be served along with alcohol, these establishments became known as “supper clubs”. In the 40’s and 50’s these clubs resemble more what we think of as Cabaret club. Small, crowded, smoke-filled rooms were the backdrop for pianist and torch singer. More and more, jazz and Broadway songs were popular, with some off color songs and material reserved for the wee hours. Also, clubs were seeing integrated audiences, gay and lesbian headliners, comedy teams and legendary performers, such as Billie Holiday, Pearl Bailey, Eartha Kitt, Yul Brenner, Bobbie Short, Mike Nichols and Elaine May (to name a few)

By the 1960’s, with the rise of rock and roll, there was distinct change in American taste in music. Small clubs could no longer afford to pay major stars like Barbara Streisand and Kaye Ballard and couldn’t draw big enough audiences with unknowns. Many clubs went out of business. With the rise of gay night clubs in New York in the 1970’s, a new Cabaret opportunity was born. The Tubs was the first such establishment. This unexpected performance space was inside the Ansonia Baths on Broadway, where Bette Midler began her career.

Dozens of new clubs blossomed, with former Broadway stars (Barbara Cook, Julie Wilson and others) redirecting their careers to become Cabaret headliners. Beginning in the 1980’s many club owners changed their business strategy to a “self produced” show, where the entertainer rents the room, provides the publicity and hopes to draw a big enough audience to have a successful evening. This direction leads new performers to be very creative in producing new Cabaret shows. This has been a lasting direction that we all know. American Cabaret, and all of it’s facets continues to be a passion for many, and will likely continue to evolve and change over the next decades.

This is the direction BACA and other Cabaret organizations face currently. BACA not only helps to promote and advertise member’s self-produced shows, but also creates performance opportunities for members through Festivals; March is Cabaret Month productions, Songwriter Showcases for Composers and Lyricists, Open Mikes, Annual Conferences featuring our Educators, Masterclasses and many other innovative occasions to feature Cabaret entertainment. BACA helps to guide new and seasoned performers to create and expand their performance markets.

Rebecca Parris was born in Newton, Massachusetts on December 28, 1951. She was born of a family of musicians and educators. Rebecca performed from the age of 6, mostly in musical theatre. Her parents encouraged her to pursue the study of music. She studied with world-famous vocal coach, Blair MacClosky (her uncle) and attended the Boston Conservatory. Rebecca started her professional career in music working with various top 40's bands in the Northeast. She found that she preferred singing jazz and embarked upon a career in the jazz world. Rebecca has performed all over the world with her own groups, as well as with some of jazz's greatest legends, including Dizzy Gillespie, Buddy Rich, Woody Herman, Terry Gibbs, David "Fathead" Newman, Norman Simmons, Harold Jones, Andy Simpkins, Gerry Wiggins, Bill Cunliffe, Red Mitchell, Buster Cooper, Nat Pierce, and many others.

Rebecca's other passion is teaching, both in a private, one-on-one and workshop/clinic setting. Her lessons and workshops focus on technique, performance and the "business" side of music, as well as lyric delivery and scat/improvisation.

Rebecca's latest release is "You Don't Know Me" on the Saying It With Jazz label. Rebecca performs some well-chosen standards with her long-time trio: Brad Harfield, piano; Peter Kontrimas, bass; and Matt Gordy, drums, plus guest artists Jerry Bergonzi and Houston Person on tenor saxophone and Gary Burton on vibes.

Rebecca's previous releases include her all-ballads CD, "My Foolish Heart," "The Secret of Christmas," "A Beautiful Friendship," with the Kenny Hadley Big Band, "Double Rainbow" with Eddie Higgins and Michael Monaghan, "A Passionate Fling," "Love Comes and Goes," and "Live at Chan's."

Rebecca continues to travel and bring her music to the world.

Dane Vannatter

Dane Vannatter was awarded the 2006 Bistro Award for Outstanding Vocalist by the critics of BackStage in New York and is a 2007 Nightlife Award finalist. Dane has been acclaimed by reviewers at The New York Post, The Boston Globe and BackStage for a style that "blends facets of cabaret and jazz with intelligence and care." The Boston Globe remarks "Dane Vannatter's distinctive style leaves an imprint on whatever music he sings. His voice has a floating quality that gets in your head and won't leave....his music is a swinging, soaring adventure!" Dane is also the recipient of the 2000 Bistro Award for Outstanding CD for his second recording "Flight." He has been nominated for 3 MAC awards and performed for several years at the annual Mabel Mercer Cabaret Convention at Town Hall in New York. Dane has also performed in New York at the legendary Sardi's, and at Metropolitan Room. Dane's 3 CD's & schedule are available on his website www.danevannatter.com.

BACA "March IS Cabaret Month (MICM) 2009 Festival" Cabaret Showcase Program for Saturday, March 21, 2009

Celia Slattery

DESCRIPTION You're invited to the "cast party," as singer Celia Slattery celebrates the release of her new CD, Cast of Characters. Celia's original music weaves elements of jazz, pop and folk/rock with perceptive lyrics inspired by artists like Joni Mitchell, Leonard Cohen and Richard Thompson, all of whose music she also covers. The songs touch upon broad-ranging themes including friendship, the effects of war, and overcoming cynicism. BIO Celia's performance style evolved over three decades and melds her background in folk, jazz and theatre. The music she grew up with, by the topical singer-songwriters of the 60's, was an early influence. Those songs spoke to issues that Celia felt passionately about, and at age 16 she left high school to join the peace movement in Washington, DC. A single mother at age 19, Celia managed to put herself through school, earning a degree in theatre and piecing together a career in performing arts. She taught acting, and wrote and directed many original plays and musicals in educational and community settings. These experiences shaped a dramatic sensibility which found expression as a solo acoustic act, launched at the former Peterborough, NH club, The Folkway. Throughout the 80's, she performed in clubs throughout New England, including Passim in Cambridge and The Iron Horse in Northampton, as well as playing a large assortment of lesser known bars and coffeehouses. Later, she returned to school to earn her Masters Degree in the Independent Study program at Lesley University, combining field work in Theatre with Voice and Jazz Studies at New England Conservatory. The bars got a little better, including a seven-month stint in 1991 singing at the Bamboo Bar in the Oriental Hotel in Bangkok, Thailand, often cited as world's #1 hotel. (The experience is immortalized in the song, "Bamboo Bar" on her new CD, Cast of Characters.) With help from nationally-known director Bill Castellino, Celia wove her autobiographical songs and stories into a one-woman show, Moving Target. A classic tale about growing up amidst the turbulent political and social changes of the 60's and 70's, Moving Target toured from 1997 - 2004 at venues such as the Montreal Fringe Festival, First Night Boston, and Jimmy Tingle's Off-Broadway Theatre. Music from the show was featured on Celia's 2001 debut CD, Movin' On. In addition to performing, Celia currently teaches voice and performance skills in her private studio and has given workshops and master classes in many settings including New England Conservatory Summer School, the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival, and the Northeast Folk Alliance Conference.

Ann Marie King

Quirky girl next door and theater veteran turned Stand-Up Comedian/Cabaret singer, Ann Marie King brings a clever blend of expressive & witty worldly observations with a unique comical style. Quirky and endearing, she can also melt your heart with a lovely ballad. Her delightful voice has brought her to sing at Fenway Park as she was chosen to be one of 4 finalists out of over 350 applicants to sing in the Oldies 103.3 Superstar Contest at the Hatch Shell! She also released a CD "A Little Joy for a Merry Christmas" and has worked on demos for other songwriters.

She has been charming audiences for years in leading comedic and musical roles in regional theater and musicals. Operatic Roles include Jabba the Hutt in "Space Opera" (based on George Lucas' Star Wars), Samireh in "Springtime for Haman"; Monica in "The Coronation of Esther and MissTique in "Antiphony" (all of these operas are available on commercial CD). Other favorite roles include: Sybil in "Private Lives", young Rose Kennedy in "Go Lovely Rose"; Philia in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum", Bianca in "Taming of the Shrew"; and most recently for the last 5 years as her portrayal of kooky bridesmaids Louisa Ravioli and Gina Pastina in the long running Boston hit "Joey & Maria's Comedy Italian Wedding", and the singer Dee Dee Diamond in a dinner theater spoof on the TV show "The Sopranos".

Whether she's singing or telling jokes, you've got to see this real diamond in the rough, and a true delight for the soul!

Michelle Costa

Michelle Costa is a singer/songwriter born and raised just north of historic Boston.

She has been inspired by the music of Nina Simone, Annie Lennox, George Michael, Sade, Sting, U2, Tori Amos and Gloria Estefan.

Michelle's musical style is informed by her multicultural heritage and experience.

Michelle Costa's sophisticated pop based production is infused with world and jazz sounds that flirt with the excitement of electronica. Her voice is best described as a soulful yet ethereal mezzo-soprano that draws back to influences like Sade and Roberta Flack, coupled with a unique sweetness. Her caressing sound is complimented by melodies that weave themselves around you. Sometimes playful and infectious, sometimes haunting, but always disarming, just listen. Beneath her seductive sound lies the foundation of intelligently crafted lyrics that invite you to go deeper.

Michelle was born a singer. She was drawn to it at an early age, singing before speaking. Music is part of her earliest memories. "Songs are like photographs melodically coloring my past", she says. After performing with a children's church choir at the age of six, she understood her place in the world. Five years later, she discovered her love for writing. At first she used melodies from other songs to suit her "new" lyrics, but then began to writing her own songs soon after she turned 12.

Michelle strives to create music that is able to reach into the listener. "It's that abstract and undefined magic that I'm after", she says. "That's the gift of music: it lives freely and can touch many people without diminishing the impact it has on each of them, connecting us to the rest of the world".

Michelle records in multiple languages as another way to reach out and make that connection. Michelle believes the most important part of music is the preservation of the essence from which the idea comes, the root of it's meaning. She says, "If you stay true to that, everything else falls into place".

Michelle began formal training at the age of 14 building on her abilities throughout high school. While attending college she joined the university gospel choir. After graduation she released her first self penned EP while continuing work on her album.

Michelle Costa is releasing her album in 2009. It includes tracks in Portuguese and Spanish.

BACA "March IS Cabaret Month (MICM) 2009 Festival" Cabaret Showcase Program for Saturday, March 21, 2009

Michelle is looking forward to sharing her new work with audiences beginning in Spring 2009. She is hard at work launching this project but always finds the time to work on new material and perform.

Peter Nash

Peter is a relatively recent performer in the world of cabaret, but he is no musical novice. As young man he studied carinet and sax, played in local groups before forming his own ten piece band. He soon landed a gig at the famous Roseland Ballroom in Taunton, MA. which kept being extended to nearly 6 months. Then came Boston and South Shore summer concerts with Fourteen musicians. With musical jobs becoming scarce, came stints as Radio DJ, Host and writer of a cable TV show called 'PANACHE', along activity in community] theater. With his musical background, Peter is well equipped to interpret 'The Great American Songbook' in his new role.

David Diamond

David Diamond is a psychiatrist and psychoanalyst practicing at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston. He began singing six years ago and has been in vocal training with Patricia Craig at the New England Conservatory of Music for the past two years. He has performed with the Crittenden Opera Program, the Worcester Opera Works and Basically Broadway. He has given several solo recitals in the Boston area. He travels to Florence, Italy this summer to further his operatic training in the Canta Italia program.

Tom LaMark (Pianist)

Pianist /Arranger / Conductor Tom LaMark is a graduate of the Berklee College of Music with a degree in arranging and composition.

After playing his first professional "gig" at age 13, Tom has made the music business his livelihood.

In the 70's, Tom lived and worked in New York City doing everything there was to do in the business, from street level to the Rainbow Room.

He has accompanied show business greats: Aretha Franklin, Anthony Newley, The Smothers Brothers and many, many more.

Tom has performed professionally with jazz greats: Buddy Rich, Dizzy Gillespie, Phil Woods, Johnny Hartman and a host of others.

Tom served as music director on seven consecutive world cruises of the prestigious Holland America and Royal Viking cruise lines rehearsing and conducting shows of an amazingly varied nature on a daily basis.

In October of 2007, Tom had the pleasure of playing at Carnegie Hall with BACA member Karyn Levitt.

He is now very active in the Boston area Cabaret community acting as musical director, arranger and CD producer for our region's best and aspiring performers.

Tom is also the leader of the Boston based Tom LaMark Orchestra performing for many corporate, charitable and private clients in the finest venues locally and nationwide. The Orchestra was chosen last summer by the Taj Hotel (formerly the Ritz-Carlton) to carry on the
